APRIL SALE

Bought your pillows & comforters elsewhere? Guaranteed you overpaid!!!

CAVEAT EMPTOR (BUYER BEWARE)

Don't be misled by advertisements for European goose down comforters at supposedly "SALE PRICES". We'll show you that most of those ads do not represent good values at all. Just because these advertisements are from major departments stores - do not be fooled-all down is not alike.

The quality of goose down is measured in fill power (also know as loft). Fill Power is the amount of cubic inches one ounce of down will fill. Our 800 plus Siberian Goose Down will fill between 800 and 850 cubic inches of space. "The Company Store" catalog always lists the fill power of their goose down. Bring in their catalog and we'll generally save you 50% off their prices.

Goose Down Comforters are an investment, with proper care a fine quality comforter will last a life time. Our high quality 100% cotton shells, or tickings, are divided into baffle boxes. The baffle box has a mesh channel separating the top from the bottom of the comforter. The baffle allows the down to give you maximum loft without collecting in one section of the comforter. We do not cater to the consumer that is more interested in price than quality. Our most valuable asset is our customer. We will only sell a product that we believe to be the highest value at the best price. Cheap low quality down should fill garage cans not pillows and comforters. All our goose down pillows and comforters contain 100% goose down even though it is legal to combine 70% down and 30% feathers and label the item 100% goose down. Remember feathers are those things with quills, down is similar to tiny balls of cotton, absolutely no hard quill. Our goose down comforters and pillows are machine washable because they only contain down.

The larger the individual down cluster the higher the fill power. The higher the fill power the better the comforter will insulate thus providing more comfort to you. Since you are spending 1/3 of your life in bed it should be as luxurious as possible. - Why not?

Fish Tail

Long Island Plays Key Role In Confirming Continental Drift Theory

By Dan Rattiner

Scientists have long known that the continents are drifting. Europe and Africa separated to create the Mediterranean. South America drifted off from Africa to create the Atlantic Ocean.

How all this happened over several billion years has long been a mystery, but now scientists think they have a clue about how it is done. It is right here on eastern Long Island. In fact it IS eastern Long Island. It is the "fish tail" that consists of the North and South Forks.

It is well known that over the milleniums, Long Island has been inching closer and closer to Manhattan. Every year a few millimeters of land get eroded off of Montauk Point and Orient Point and every year a few millimeters get added on to Far Rockaway and Brooklyn. Until now, it was thought that this erosion was only the result of the movement of the water in which the island sits. The water would scour away the land in the east and pile up the land in the west. But now, in an astonishing development, it has turned out the cause of this is something else entirely.

"We've discovered a wiggle in the fish tail," said Dr. Aaron Stone of the Institute for Continental Drift in Columbus, Ohio. "Monitors were placed in the woods one mile west of Montauk Point and one mile west of Orient Point last year and after analyzing the readings we have determined that the fish tails are moving up and down and pushing the island westward at the rate of six millimeters per year. It's not erosion at all. The island is actually moving."

> "We at first thought Long Island might have drifted off from Africa... But it turns out it was Ireland."

Although apparently not at a speed at which anyone would notice.

The idea for the fish tail study came from one of the doctoral students at the Institute.

"It seemed a crackpot idea," Dr. Stone said. "We thought it would be a good thing for a doctoral thesis and nothing more. We never expected this."

At the rate of six millimeters a year, Long Island has taken two and a half billion years to swim the Atlantic. Further studies of fauna and flora have been made and it seems that not long ago Long Island was a part of Ireland.

"We at first thought Long Island might have drifted off from Africa, or perhaps Portugal," Dr. Stone said. "But it turns out it was Ireland. Specifically, southwestern Ireland just south of Killarney. We have found traces of the palm trees that, due to the wet and warm weather, grow in this part of Ireland. And we have also found the front end of a dinosaur skeleton, the back end of which is buried in a cliff in that part of Ireland."

A major casualty of this discovery is the long held belief that the twin flukes of eastern Long Island were created by glaciers from the ice age. In all geology books, the South Fork is described as having been created when the first ice age crossed over from Connecticut, melted, and left all this dirt and debris it had pushed down from Canada. A second grouping of debris, from a later ice age, became the bedrock of what we call the North Fork. The second ice age melted a few miles further north

South O' the Highway (and North, too)

Hamptonites will gather on Wednesday evening April 24 at the Plaza for the 2001 Bergh Ball. Jonathan Farkas, Mr. and Mrs. Joel Leff, James Nederlander and Mrs. Howard Gittis with Mrs. Benjamin V. Lamberg as Founding Chairs honor the life and works of the late journalist and animal activist Roger A. Caras, who was president emeritus of the ASPCA for over twenty-five years. Certainly a worthy candidate for such a prestigious organization to recognize.

Finally...Armani's coming to town and leave it to Morgan Rank of the Morgan Rank Gallery, East Hampton to lend out his gallery so Armani can test the water (market) out here for clients. We wonder if Tom Cruise who has been seen "cruising" around on his new motor sports cycle be stopping in there. He does carry Armani well.

Congrats to cover artist Barbara Ernst Prey. Though you noticed her water colors here first on our covers for the past few years, we should say she was discovered a long, long time before that. Her work is being shown at prestigious Jensen Five Arts. Her work is collected and acclaimed around the world.

Another fabulous kick-off party to launch Southampton Hospital's 43rd. annual summer party. A private viewing of the Berggruen Collection and Impressionist, Modern and Contemporary art at Phillips Auctioneers on April 30. Oh to be a fly on the wall...or a painting.

Ted Dragon, whose character was featured in the Jackson Pollack film will celebrate his 80th birthday on April 24. Harry Acton Striebel is flying in from Palm Beach at the last moment, a special celebration was planned at Mar-a-Logo. Ted however, ever the Taurus, has refused to leave East Hampton. A special "Masked Ball" has been planned here instead, invitations are much sort after. The theme, of course, is Ballet Russe, as Ted was the lead at the Paris Opera.

Here's what our latest patients are saying....

• When I first went to see you about having my eyes done, I told you my greatest desire was to be able to enjoy theatre again by seeing the faces of people on stage. This week I have been to two events, less than two weeks after my surgery, and that wish has been granted......

Robert Barandes
Attorney at Law

• I must admit that I was somewhat apprehensive about the final outcome of the surgery, I am very glad I had it done. Now I realize with great happiness that this was the right choice for me. The old fear of losing my eyesight or having complications because of it, seem very laughable now.

As a patient and psychologist I want you to know that your professionalism, reassurance and caring before, during and after the surgery are greatly appreciated. Besides being a physician you are a true gentleman. You can be sure that I will recommend you enthusiastically to anyone who talks to me about LASIK surgery.

Dr. Marie A. Carrese

• You couldn't get the smile off my face, waking up and able to see without the aid of glasses or contacts. I was very pleased with Dr. Ricci and his staff for making one feel at ease and being so confident going through the procedure than the first. Thus there was the space between.

"All these history books will have to be revised," said Dr. Stone.

Although not completely. The two ice age glaciers were not confined just to the Americas. They also came down over Europe, it turns out, grinding to a halt across the midsection of Ireland. It's possible that what became Long Island actually WAS created by these glaciers, but over in Ireland.

"The fishtails were laid down," Dr. Stone said. "Long Island broke free, and it began to wiggle away. The fishtails are a cause, not an effect. And it raises the questions — what did Long Island want to get away from? And, why does it want to head into New York City?"

Two other mysteries remain.

One is, did South America ever have fish tails? And if so, would that explain the Falkland Islands?

The second is — when is the wriggling of Long Island going to stop? How much in danger is the City of New York?

Only time will tell. The first thing that will go is the breaking off of the bridges to Manhattan. The eastern ends of the Williamsburg, the Manhattan and the Brooklyn Bridges will break free and begin to plow a furrow through Queens and Brooklyn. Then the Queens Midtown Tunnel will break apart and flood. Then the Whitestone and Throg's Neck Bridges will split sideways. Eventually, Long Island, with Roosevelt Island draped around its head, will plow into and demolish the United Nations, Citibank, Sutton Place and the new Trump skyscraper.

"It doesn't look good," Dr. Stone said. "It somehow reminds me of a sperm burrowing into an egg. Very determined."

The drive between Manhattan and the Hamptons will certainly be shortened. But that seems to be the limit of the good that might come out of this.

Mostly, this looks like an accident that could result in trillions of dollars in damages. It doesn't look good.

A call to the office of Mayor Guiliani elicited a response that they had not yet read the Institute's report and therefore would have no comment. ●

Unwilling To Build A Gate At The Shinnecock Canal, Devious Methods Are Tried

By Dan Rattiner

Last Wednesday, the Mayor of Hoboken, New Jersey announced that no outsiders would be allowed to drive their cars into his town between the hours of 7 and 9 a.m. every weekday morning. Police would man a checkpoint at the one main road into town. Identities would be checked. The new law would go into effect on Monday. They'd had enough of traffic gridlock.

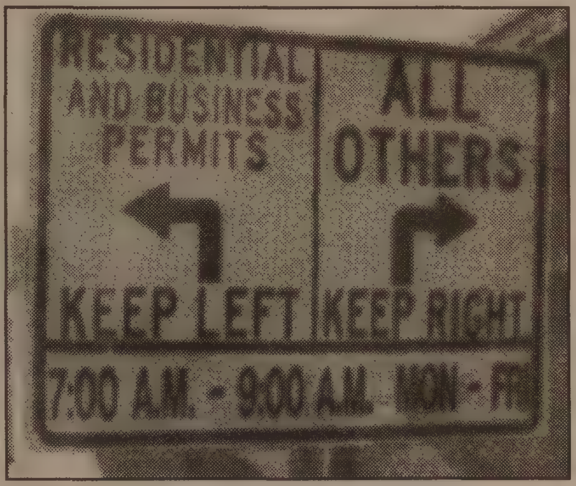
This announcement electrified the New York Metropolitan area. Was it possible? Could a Mayor really do this? The Mayors of neighboring towns, Weehawken, Jersey City and Hackensack noted that if outsiders could not go into Hoboken, then they'd pass similar laws for their towns. Talk about gridlock. Who did the Mayor think he was?

The Mayor is Anthony Russo and he said that surveys had determined that nearly three quarters of the traffic at that hour was by commuters either trying to find parking near the PATH train to Manhattan or looking for a shortcut to the Holland Tunnel.

"There's plenty of parking for commuters in Jersey City," the Mayor said.

It's turned out, of course, that the Mayor's plan is surely unconstitutional, so when the Hudson County Attorney advised Mayor Russo of this, he postponed the starting day of the new ordinance. Nevertheless, the signs announcing the law are still in place. RESIDENTIAL AND BUSINESS PERMITS KEEP LEFT the sign reads. ALL OTHERS KEEP RIGHT, 7 to 9 am Mon - Fri. Left takes you into town. Right takes you back out of town. No harm in having the sign up.

Here in the Hamptons, there are many people who are secretly pleased about the Hoboken story and rooting for Mayor Russo. Oh, if only one of our Mayors had the guts he has. What we really need here, and we've needed it for years, is a big metal gate at the Shinnecock Canal. In the summertime, we begin counting on Thursday afternoon and by Saturday, when the number of people reaches a certain total, clang goes the gate and on goes a neon sign. FULL. Nobody else allowed in. That's it for people coming out from the City.



RESIDENTIAL AND BUSINESS PERMITS
KEEP RIGHT
7:00 A.M. - 9:00 A.M. MON - FR

If we had this clang-shut gate, we wouldn't have a secondary problem, now at crisis proportions, which is the traffic jam of worker's trucks every morning coming to work over the bridge between 7 and 9 a.m., and then again every evening going home between 5 an 7 p.m. We would not have the pressure on housing, we would not have rents through the roof and we would not have all our working class people forced to live on the other side of the bridge in Mastic, Moriches and Patchogue where the rents are at least possible.

The chances of our putting up a gate at the Shinnecock Canal, however, are about as good as the chances of Mayor Russo keeping the American public out of Hoboken between 7 and 9. Neither is going to happen.

On the other hand, I do like the idea of the Hoboken sign staying in place at the entrance to town even if the law is never put into effect. You know, it could be that the Highway Department just never gets around to taking it down. It could have a big deterrent effect.

I might note that there are already several signs in the Hamptons for motorists urging that they do this or that which are for effect only. One of them is at Shrubland Road off County Road 39 where the Town of Southampton does not want city people taking shortcuts to avoid traffic jams. It faces the oncoming eastbound traffic and there are two of them. The first reads ROAD CLOSURE AHEAD. The second reads NEXT LEFT SHRUBLAND ROAD CLOSED TO THRU TRAFFIC. People get ready to take this shortcut, then see the sign, hesitate and it's too late. They've gone past it.

It all kind of makes you wonder what this place is going to be like in 2200. Maybe everybody will be staying home, putting on headphones, and only going places in 3D in their minds. Or maybe the temperature will rise, the polar ice caps will melt and we will all be underwater. ●

Broadway Shows Are Coming To The Hamptons As Part Of Guild Hall Revival

By Dan Rattiner

The John Drew Theatre at Guild Hall was founded in the 1920s as one of the great regional theatres on the east coast. Shows would have their run on Broadway, then live on as road companies, packing houses everywhere around the country, including the John Drew here in East Hampton. But then, in the 1980s, summer stock went into decline. There was less of it to be sure, but it did not die. Such places as the Goodspeed in Connecticut, the Paper Mill in New Jersey and other regional theatres came into prominence. But here on the east end, the John Drew seemed to wither up and quietly fade away. There were concerts and lectures to be sure. But the big Broadway names just passed us by.

> ...during this period there will be a host of offerings, including a Swahili dance troupe, a new monologue by Spalding Gray... classical music...

All that was left, it seemed to me, were these wonderful memories of Guild Hall's glorious past. There was one day, for example, that the cast of How To Succeed In Business Without Really Trying came to my house after opening night and partied 'til dawn. They did one of their main numbers in my living room, belting it out, the dancers tromping in unison on my hardwood floor and the next day when I woke up and noted that everyone had finally gone, I found that my living room floor had this strange bouncing spring to it, sort of like a trampoline. I called in a contractor. We had to have the house jacked up an inch and rejiggered on its foundations.

THAT was a party.

More memories. We had Louis Jourdan, Hermoine Gingold, Sandy Dennis and Dina Merrill on stage, with the interns building the stage sets the week beforehand in the Sherrill barn on Springs Fireplace Road. On performance nights, we had people from all over milling about in the lobby where a great oil painting of John Drew, a summer resident and one of the most celebrated actors of the early twentieth century, graced the lobby. Beyond the lobby was the whimsical hatbox of a theatre, which had been named for him. In those years, reviews of the plays at the John Drew would appear in The New York Times. Then, suddenly, one year, it was all gone.

But where? The theatre still stood, hosting a lecture by a noted authority or a recital by an accomplished violinist. But now, what theatre there was was put on by amateurs, residents of the community who performed well, sometimes very well, but were no substitute for the nationally known professionals who had come before.

During this long dry time — it lasted about fifteen years — it seemed to me that Guild Hall suffered from serious internal problems. A new director would be hired and welcomed with great fanfare, then a year or two later leave following some bitter battle with the board. What battle? Why were there these hard feelings? Nobody wanted to talk about it. What a sad time for the John Drew.

During this time, two new regional theatres sprang up — the Bay Street in Sag Harbor, and the Westhampton Beach Performing Arts Center. In Southampton, meanwhile, the Parrish Art Museum, under the direction of Trudy Kramer, slowly gained strength. This year, with the acquisition of the old empty library building next door, it will double in size, gain national accredation, and also become a force to be reckoned with.

And now, here comes the John Drew. Ruth Appelhof was appointed Executive Director in September of 1999. And she's made two excellent appointments in Simon Taylor, a young art curator, who will enliven the art galleries, and Josh Gladstone, a young actor and producer, formerly of the Shakespeare Music Festival in Montauk. The little hatbox John Drew will once again sing with professional performances this summer.

The season will begin on June 14 when a new play written by B. J. Friedman entitled Married Moments opens. It will consist of seven tiny playlets about marriage and will run for seven performances, ending on June 24.

On June 27, the theatre will begin an eight performance run of the off-broadway show America Rhapsody, starring K. T. Sullivan and Mark Nadler. This will have its last performance on July 8.

Finally, on August 23, there will be the premiere of a new play by Jenny Lyn Bader entitled Manhattan Casanova, which will star Academy and Tony Award winning actor Mercedes Ruehl. This will continue through eleven performances until September 9.

You will have noticed that there will be a break between July 8 and August 23, and during this period there will be a host of other offerings, including a Swahili dance troupe, a monologue by Spalding Gray, a concert by conductor Jonathan Sheffer and the EOS Orchestra, a multimedia program of classical music (Chopin), video, sculpture and piano, tributes to Cole Porter, choreographer Patricia Birch, and musical creator Joe Stein, an art talk with Dennis Oppenheim, the screening of a film about artist Ross Bleckner, and concerts featuring Jazz legend Hal McKusick, performers Caroline Doctorow, Nancy Atlas, Jim Turner and the Lone Sharks. There is also a French film festival every Tuesday night offered by Lincoln Center and a children's program every Wednesday night.

I spoke briefly with Josh Gladstone, the theatre director, the other day.

"It will take time," he said, "but our goal is to be more of a play producing house. We are currently negotiating to bring in Pirates of Penzance or Treasure Island. It's going to be quite a season."

I asked him what brought him here and whether the Shakespeare Festival in Montauk will continue without him.

"My wife and I have been in New York, auditioning for work, occupying ourselves in the theatre. And then two things happened. My wife had a baby. And along came this real job opportunity. I jumped at it. Shakespeare in Montauk? My partner David Brandenberg will bring Twelfth Night there this summer."

Up with culture. And long live the John Drew. ●

A Driver's License For The Abandoned Island Of Monserratt And Other Stories

By Dan Rattiner

As many readers know, Dan's Papers recently put a new wing on its office building in Bridgehampton. And something very unexpected has happened. We are, on the second floor, drowning in stuff. I'll explain.

Before the adding on of the new wing, B. W., (Before Wing), there was a very delicate but controllable situation about the stuff. Stuff was everywhere. In the basement, the first floor, the second floor, the attic. But it was in drawers and in filing cabinets and piled in boxes higgelty piggelty over here and over there. This newspaper has been in business for 41 years, since I started it as a teenager during the Eisenhower administration.

Why throw anything away? The building is plenty big. We need to store our accounting and advertising records for the years 1963 to 1968, right? Put them up in the attic, on the left. There's this rifle range award I got during the third grade. Hang it on the wall in the alcove between my office and the second floor bathroom. You never know when I'll be interviewing a sharpshooter for the police department up in my office and would like to point this out.

> The concept was simple. Find a box, bring it to the second floor where my office is and I will go though it and determine what needs to be thrown out...

The period Before Wing ended in October of 2000 when we got our Certificate of Compliance from the Building Department of the Town of Southampton for the new wing. We could move in. And so A. W. (After Wing) began. And with plenty of room now to store all the old stuff plus any new stuff, the troubles began. I made a terrible decision. I decided that a group would be assembled to begin to dig into the old stuff with an eye to throwing out what is no longer necessary to keep.

The idea was that this was the perfect time to do some housekeeping to make room not only for new stuff that will be coming in and deposited in the new wing, but even more new stuff that could be stored where some of the old stuff was but now could be taken to the dump. The building would still be filling up in the year 2114.

This housecleaning effort began in mid-October of last year, and consisted of five archeologists with pick axes and hard hats, led by me, ascending the steep stairs to the attic and descending the steep stairs to the basement of our building and looking into everywhere possible. The concept was simple. Find a box, bring it to the second floor where my office is and I will go through it and determine what needs to be thrown out and what needs to be saved. The stuff being thrown out goes to the dumpster. What is being saved is put back in the box and moved hand over hand up to storage in the attic.

The result of this, after four months, is that whole piles of partially opened boxes are clogging up the second floor of the newspaper, either waiting for me to go through them, or, alternately, my having gone through them and having found nothing to go out, waiting to be taken upstairs. The project is an unmitigated disaster, with no end in sight.

For example, I came across a box of programs from a promotion I ran for the Montauk Chamber of Commerce in 1965. It was called SeaFair Week. And it was the week after Labor Day and the idea was that the tourists, if lured by the activities of that week, might decide to extend the summer into the early autumn. According to the programs, printed on blue paper, there was a tennis tournament, a sailboat race, a kite flying contest, a golf competition and several swimming events. I remember it well. Someday somebody is going to ask me about this and how it went. I'll tell the truth. Ten people showed up. Can't throw that out.

I found the building plans for the huge renovation we did when I bought this office building in Bridgehampton back in 1971. This had been a private home. Right on the Montauk Highway. Now it is an office building. Can't throw those plans away. What if the Town Building Department wanted to see them?

The trouble is, of course, I am a pack rat. I don't believe this is genetic. My parents are not pack rats. It is learned behavior. And what I have learned, is that the moment I throw anything out — because it has not been used or asked about or commented upon for twenty two years — the very next day somebody wants it.

For example, in the third month of going through all this stuff, which was January 2001, I came upon an AC adapter with a special connector that plugged into one of the first portable computers ever made, the revolutionary Osborne I. There was a note taped to this AC adapter, handwritten on white paper, attached with scotch tape. The note was in the handwriting of my better half, Cat Squires, and it read MARCH 1997. THIS IS A SPECIAL ADAPTER FOR AN OLD COMPUTER NO LONGER BEING USED. THE REAL QUESTION IS WHETHER DAN WILL HAVE THE COURAGE TO THROW IT AWAY.

Why hadn't I thrown it away? I'll tell you. I had bought nine Osborne I computers when they first came out in 1979. They had four inch black and white screens, and they ran on a now arcane operating system called CP/M. But you could write articles on these computers, save them on 5 1/4 inch disks, and since the Osborne I weighed only 23 pounds, you could lug it around and plug it in anywhere. We had Osborne Is in Montauk, at an outpost on Block Island, on Fire Island, in Greenport and, of course, at the main office in Bridgehampton, we had a whole fleet of them.

We used Osborne Is for the reporters to write on until 1986. That year, I retired them and stuck all nine in the attic. In 1994, after much trepidation, I gave eight of the nine Osborne Is to a church in Riverhead as a charitable donation. One week later, a woman in Montauk who had bought her own Osborne I in 1979 wanted to know if she could buy each of the nine Osborne Is I owned for her antique computer collection. I called the church. The eight Osborne Is were gone. I told the woman this and we both moaned and groaned. Then I told her I wanted to hold onto the ninth one, but she could borrow it if she ever needed it. She declined. I have it to this day. And of course I still have the AC adapter for this last one, in spite of the note on it written by Cat in 1997.

So now the whole second floor of Dan's Papers is an utter mess. And everybody is walking around or stepping over boxes and bags of stuff. The archeological team has gone home, mission not accomplished. Forget interior decorating. I am living in a time warp of my own making.

Anybody care to see the drivers licence I have, issued in 1973 and good for one week, by officials on the island of Monserrat in the Carribean? The volcano on Monserrat exploded in 1996 and the whole island is now abandoned, the Capitol city of Plymouth inundated by a sea of lava. Imagine that! A driver's licence for a place where there are no longer people or cars! If I throw it out, somebody's gonna ask to see it the very next day.

You can count on it. •

The Trial Continues

In Tortola, An Informant Sticks To His Story And The DNA Evidence Fizzles

By Jerry Cimisi

Deposition of Buelah Romney: "I have heard about the death of Lois McMillen.... On the night of 14th January [2000] I was at home...about midnight. After my husband went to have his bath I heard a vehicle coming from the west and...a sudden brake. Then I hear somebody screaming. The person was screaming for mercy. I went to the bathroom door and said something to my husband. The screaming went on for three to four minutes. I looked through the bedroom window which faces the sea but I did not see anything – it was dark. The area where I learned the body was discovered was the same west direction that I heard the screams coming from."

> "Upon seeing the body I checked for pulse. There wasn't any. The body was barefoot... there were goldish shoes about two to three feet away from her head."

The trial in Tortola of four Americans charged with the murder of Connecticut artist Lois McMillen, appears to be running its expected course. An inmate informant is sticking to his story—which thus far seems to be the only thing the prosecution has on the defendants. The long awaited DNA evidence, which had to be undertaken in labs outside this small Caribbean island, has thus far not produced any links between the accused and the victim.

William Labrador of New York and Southampton, Alexander Benedetto of New York (a boyhood friend of Labrador's from summers in the Hamptons), Michael Spicer of Virginia and Evan George of Washington, D.C. were arrested and ultimately charged in January, 2000, after the body of Lois Livingston McMillen was found at the edge of the shore – quite close to the local police station.

Barbara Labrador, who sits on the Southampton Zoning Board of Appeals, has visited her son eleven times since his arrest. She contends that the only reason the four men were charged with the crime in the first place was that the police had held them past the legal limit allowed without being charged.

Michael Griffith, a Southampton attorney who specializes in international law, has remarked to the press that in America this case would not get into traffic court.

Deposition of Sheena Andrew: "I remember Saturday, 15th January, 2000 at around 9 a.m. I was walking to my math class.... My house is west of West End Police Station. I glimpsed over the side and saw something like a manikin, a doll. Its face was purple. So I noticed that it was real...part on the shore and part was in the sea. When the waves came in, it was swaying the body. I think she was wearing white long pants and a white shirt."

In a phone interview with Barbara Labrador, she said that although the authorities had at first said Ms. McMillen had been beaten, then drowned, there was, in fact, no conclusive evidence of violence other than drowning. "The defense did not get to see the autopsy report until well into May," she said.

On the night of January 14, Lois McMillen went to a local bar, the Jolly Rogers Inn, to hear a blues band. She was last seen talking to a man at the bar, someone who has not been identified. The four defendants, who knew McMillen (Benedetto had dated her in 1997) and who had seen her the day before, say that they did not see her at all the last day of her life and there is no evidence to prove otherwise.

Though Jeffrey D. Plante, a longtime con artist, who was doing time in Tortola at Her Majesty's Prison where Labrador, Benedetto, Spicer and George were also held, said that in April, 2000 Labrador admitted he had killed McMillan by holding her underwater with his foot until she drowned.

To say the least, Plante has a problem with credibility. He violated parole in Texas to honeymoon with a new wife in Tortola. Then the wife discovered that Plante was running up huge credit card debts without her permission. Plante was doing time for this crime when he alleges he heard not only Labrador's admission, but heard Labrador and the other defendants arguing about the crime in a manner that indicated they were guilty.

Plante's transmission of the alleged confession to the authorities also has about it a bit of déjà vu. When he was serving time in Hawaii in 1995, Plante said he heard another jailhouse confession regarding a murder. When Plante testified in that case the result was a hung jury; when the defendant was retried, without Plante's testimony, the defendant was found guilty.

Deposition of Jocelyn Rhymer, Police constable. "I am stationed at the West End Police Station.... I walked over to the shoreline and observed the body of a Caucasian female lying face up at the edge of the shoreline. She was dressed in a white knicker pants, white and gold long sleeve blouse and at that time the blouse was over her breast. I was able to see her bra which was exposed. It was a cream bra. Her left breast was exposed.

"Upon seeing the body I checked for pulse. There wasn't any. The body was barefoot. The head of the body was facing towards the West End Police Station and her feet were pointed to the east. There was what appeared to be blood running from her left ear as the waves moved back and forth on her body. There were black marks on her left side on her ribcage and also two red marks or scratches in the same area. I also observed her right eye to have a bluish discoloration…there were goldish shoes about two to three feet away from her head. This would be on the shoreline. It was a shoe with a heel – a shoe that you would just slide on."

Ms. Labrador asserted that the medical examiner said the bruises suffered by the body could easily have been caused by being swept around in the water after drowning – likewise the dislodgement of the blouse and bra.

According to the authorities, Ms. McMillen had not been sexually assaulted right before her death, though she had had sex within the previous 48 hours. There had been no semen match linked with any of the four defendants.

In his May, 2000 deposition to the police, Plante stated that Benedetto has said that, "Mr. Labrador had had the girl up at the house that night." He was referring to Lois McMillen's last night alive.

At the trial, Chief Inspector Jacob George (no relation to defendant Evan George) testified that police had arrested the four men on the basis of a shirt with a blood stain, and three pairs of wet, sandy sneakers. George also said that stained fingernail clippings were found at Zebra House (owned by Spicer's parents), where all the defendants were staying.

Richard Hector, attorney for William Labrador, held the Banana Republic shirt of defendant Michael Spicer and asked George to point out the stain. George said he had seen the stain over the left breast pocket, but in the courtroom no stain was in evidence.

Inspector George also had to admit that Michael Spicer's sneakers had been missing for ten months during the time they had been in police custody.

The prosecution has maintained that analysis of the sneakers showed that the sand in the sneakers matched the sand of the beach where McMillen was found, but the defense contends this sand is not unique to that particular beach and found all over the island.

There is also the issue of McMillen's old boyfriend, an Italian house painter, Luigi Lungani. She had once been engaged to him, and apparently the couple had had a volatile relationship. Lungani admitted he had sometimes been violent with McMillen, but has provided the authorities with an alibi for the night of the murder.

When Sergeant Julian Harley, the chief detective in the investigation, took the stand, he contradicted vital points in Inspector George's testimony. Harley said Michael Spicer's sneakers were not sand covered or wet. Harley also testified that a Barbados lab has apparently lost a wet, sandy floor mat taken from McMillen's car. Also unaccounted for is a sample of sand from the beach – on the opposite side of the island – where Spicer, George and Benedetto claim they were on the evening of McMillen's death.

The trial, under British law, allows the jury to question those on the witness stand. The jury inquired of Harley if fingerprints had been found on McMillen's car. Harley replied that fingerprints had been found, though none matched those of the defendants.

And what might have been a crucial point for either the defense or prosecution was apparently bungled by the police's evidence collecting and testing procedure. Used tampons had been found in Benedetto's waste basket, but Harley could not say if they had matched a tampon taken from McMillen's body.

Pathologist Francisco Landron has testified that the bruise on McMillen's neck could have been caused by a shoe or foot, though it could not be certain if a shoe or a foot had held McMillen under the water.

In one of the more controversial points of the trial thus far, the court ruled that attorney client privilege forbids the testimony of a former FBI agent, Luis Reveiz, who, in the employ of Prosecutor Terrence Williams and the McMillen family, said he overheard Benedetto tell one of his attorneys that "someone" had slept with McMillen the night of the murder. Reveiz contends it was obvious Benedetto was talking about Labrador. ●

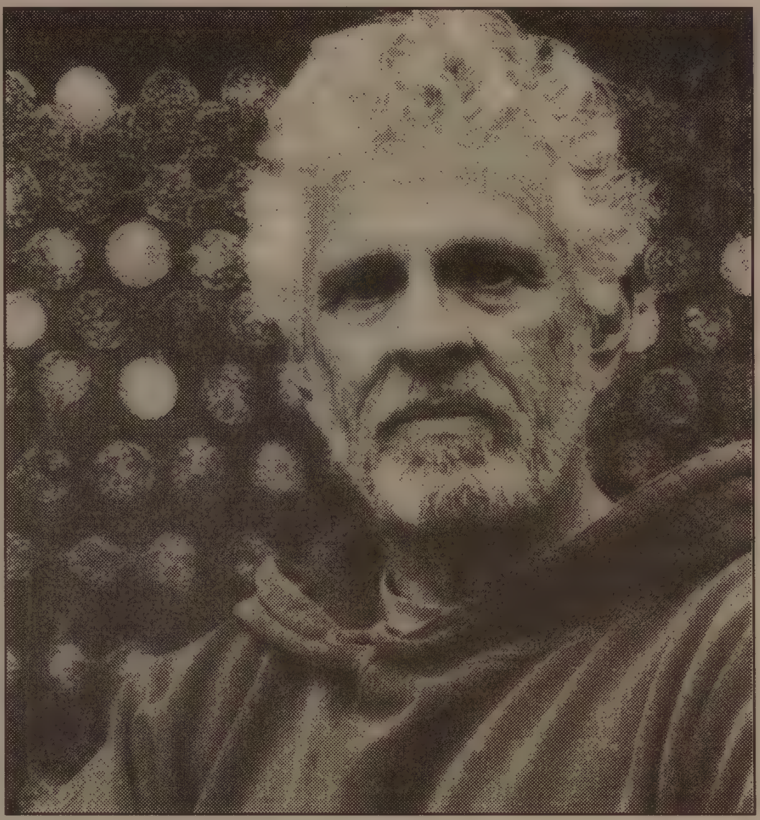
Who's Here:



Arnie Arlow

ABSOLUT ARTIST

By Susan Simm

It all began with a clear bottle. No label, shaped like an antique medicine container, so nondescript that retailers declined to put it on their shelves because all you could see was the bottle that sat behind it. It also began twenty years ago, in 1981, and has yet to end.

The Absolut vodka campaign and its creators would become advertising legends, despite initial doubt and skepticism. Arnie Arlow was a believer: he led the campaign as creative director for ten years.

"The Absolut work started when a guy that was working for me, Geoff Hayes, had an inspiration while he was in the bathtub. He was the one that did the first ad, ABSOLUT PERFECTION. This ad, the very first one showing the bottle with a halo above it and just two words of text, is so simple and so basic, it's painful," Arlow commented in a recent interview.

"One of the strangest things about the campaign was that, in the beginning, nobody saw that it had 'legs.' Legs is an advertising term that means something can keep going, over and over again, ad after ad. It's very unusual that a campaign would reach a point where, as in Absolut's case, people would understand what the ad was for without showing anything except the shape of the bottle. It appealed, and still does, because people felt that, maybe not everyone is going to understand this, but I do. The campaign has snob appeal."

Arnie was born in Brooklyn to Russian immigrant parents. He had an uneventful and fairly happy childhood, growing up in the Jewish/Italian neighborhood of Bensonhurst.

"While other kids in Brooklyn were reading comic books, I was drawing comic books. I would read them and then draw them. I became the class artist and me, Jordy Berkowitz and Bobby Brandwine, we would do all the holiday scenes on the blackboard at school."

One Christmas, Arnie's teacher, an Irish Catholic woman named Mrs. Klages, asked the boys to add holly to a scene they had drawn of a Christmas tree next to a fireplace.

"That's a beautiful scene, boys, but where is the holly?" she asked.

"We couldn't figure out why she wanted us to do this, but we went ahead anyway," said Arnie. "We thought, maybe she wants our Christmas scene to include symbols from religions other than Christianity. We were actually delighted."

When they had finished, the teacher walked over to the blackboard, smiled broadly and then suddenly doubled over in laughter. The boys had added a loaf of 'Cholly' bread (their affectionate name for Challah) over the mantle.

"In junior high school, I had an art teacher who gave us an assignment. She wanted to see how we drew people walking and I did a waiter walking, very fast, with a tray and she said, 'You really have talent. You ought to go to the School of Music and Art.' So I went. But it was an ordeal because I lived at the end of Brooklyn and it took me an hour and a half every morning and evening, by subway, to get there and back."

After graduating from Cooper Union, Arnie applied for and was granted a Fulbright Scholarship. He spent a year in Paris, 1955, painting, and achieved some success as an abstract expressionist.

"It was new to them, so I achieved a bit of notoriety," he said. But when he came back from Europe, he realized that, in New York, he was one of many while abroad he was one of a very few. Arnie got into advertising after deciding that he needed to make a decision.

> "This ad, the very first one showing the bottle with a halo above it and just two words of text, is so simple and so basic, it's painful."

"I realized that my life needed to take one path or the other. I was 23 and I made a decision: I decided to make a living!"

After working at The New York Times and several ad agencies, Arnie met Martin Landey and the two formed Martin Landey Arlow. They would work together for 14 years, acquiring the Absolut account until they sold their agency to Geers, Gross in1980. Arnie jumped to TBWA, along with the account, where he became creative director.

"As creative director, you have several teams working for you. It's like being a choreographer. It's a very collaborative process."

As head of Absolut's distributor, Carillon, Michel Roux identified so strongly with the product that he is pictured in a trade publication with the caption, "Absoult, C'est Moi." Legend has it that he was so dedicated to promoting the vodka that, after driving with his wife and family out to Southampton for the weekend to visit friends and, upon finding a bottle of Stoli in the freezer, he jumped right back in his car and drove back to his home in New Jersey without explanation.

While Absolut was enjoying a very successful campaign, it remained fairly conservative until Michel came up with an idea that would reinforce its fashionable brand identity. One night in 1983, Michel had dinner with Andy Warhol who told him that he was very inspired by the Absolut bottle and, while he didn't drink alcohol, he sometimes used it as perfume. Warhol proposed doing a painting of the bottle and Michel, delighted, paid him $65,000. (Remember, this was in 1983.) ABSOLUT WARHOL was an immediate success and Michel, when approached by many artists over the following years, became fond of saying, "He isn't worth more than Andy."

Arnie loved the Warhol but felt that the centerfold, a foldout of an unlabeled bottle with text based on the Playboy format, was really the most fun. ("Bust: 11," Waist: 11", Hips: 11." Weight: 1 Litre. Birthdate: 1879. Ambition: To always be cool, with or without ice.")

"This campaign was really a phenomenon because nobody could have predicted the extent to which it appealed." Many of the ads continue to be sought-after collectors' items today.

In 1993, the Absolut people in Sweden decided to switch to Seagrams as a distributor. Carillon (Arnie's client), along with Michel Roux, were dismissed by the Swedish monopoly after 12 years, after making Absolut the world's most recognizable brand.

"After Michel was dismissed, Stoli came to him – I was still at the agency, TBWA – and I decided to go with him to another agency and handle Stoli. When, in 1998, Stoli changed distributors as well, I decided to leave the business," said Arnie.

Arnie, along with his wife Susan Gray, a healer and artist, divide their time between New York and Amagansett where they built a beautiful, unpretentious house among the dunes.

After coming out east 12 years ago, Arnie found himself without paper and began drawing on stones he found at the beach. He feels that this is an expression of an ancient language he has yet to decipher. The stones have become part of sculptures that Arnie calls "offerings" because of their ancient, religious quality.

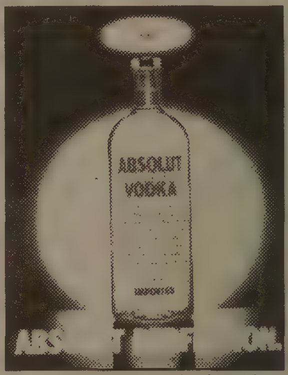
"Later on, I started to incorporate this technique in painting. I create texture on the canvas by using ground stone." The result evokes a stone tablet, something very heavy. Arnie responds to darker colors because they remind him of dust and stone, things that are ancient. He is now represented by gallery owner Arlene Bujese and was recently part of a group show in East Hampton.



The Very First Absolut Ad

"My goal now is to keep creating my work. The hard part is getting through the layers to a point where I discover something. I want to be taken someplace and I have to get right into it. I want to be as surprised as anyone else by the outcome.

"In art, as in life, there are two primary principles: the first is unity and the other is variety. Unity by itself can be very strong but also boring while variety can be too fragmented. But the two together create something very exciting."

The Sheltered Islander

OBSERVATIONS OF AN ISLANDER # 151
A TAX TO GRIND

Well, it's over for another year. I'm sure we all made the same resolutions; To keep better records, to use Quicken religiously throughout the year so that when that little button in TurboTax pops up that says, "Transfer Tax Information From Quicken?" we can hit "Yes." I think everyone is using TurboTax now.

I thank G-d for TurboTax. Before TurboTax I had to: A] pay hundreds of dollars for someone to do my taxes or B] try to get through that tome the government sends us in that cheap newspaper print booklet. I love that it always says, "New Simplified Instructions" somewhere on the cover. Simplified compared to what? Working out the distance between Mars and Saturn in inches in my head?

I am passionately in favor of a flat tax. It always bothers me that most rich people pay less in taxes than average workers because they can manipulate their investments and deductions better. I remember one year when Richard Nixon, in office at the time, paid $372 in federal income tax compared to my $4,000-ish from a nurse's salary the same year. But to be really honest, I want a flat tax because I can figure it out. You made this much, you pay this much. This I can handle. Also wouldn't it be nice to get rid of the IRS?

Did you know there was no federal income tax in this country until WWII? It was created to finance the war, but when the government saw the revenues it got, it made the Federal Income Tax a permanent institution. It created a legal terrorist organization called the IRS. They hit hard as they went after taxes because so many people resisted paying the new federal income tax. They love making examples of celebrities. Remember what they did to Willie Nelson, Redd Foxx and so many other people? When they went after Abbott & Costello, who served this country by touring with the USO throughout the war? They stripped them of everything. They actually took Costello's clothes and shoes. He was allowed to keep one suitcase of clothes. They survive because even congress is afraid of them.

Heck, even "Le Dan" Rattiner is terrified of them. They might take his hat. He deducts his hats, you know. Like Gallagher deducting watermelons or Hugh Hefner deducting blondes, it's part of the persona, part of the public expectation and recognition upon which that person's income depends. And speaking of Depends, Dan has a lot of very interesting deductions. I secretly obtained a copy of his tax return.

Golf deductions: Dan deducted membership fees in four clubs. He deducted equipment, a golf cart with a hat on top and a dacqueri blender and ice maker installed. He said in his business, he has to make contact with everyone who's anyone and it's not easy. Many times poor Dan is forced to scour the country clubs of Hamptonia to bring us the latest nudes and news. All the hours he's on the golf course, he could be on the beach. His sacrifice is tremendous.

Meals & Massage: Dan deducts all his restaurant and grocery bills. If he eats it, he deducts it. His reasoning – and this is very clever – anything that keeps him alive is necessary to his continued employment. Massage is deductable because it feeds his emotional well-being. Of course!

Sun & Sand: Dan writes at the beach. His creativity demands it. Therefore he deducts the value, in metric tons, of all the sand at his writing beach because if it wasn't there, it wouldn't be a beach now would it? He also has worked out exactly how much sun the beach uses in voltage and deducts that, because, hey, he needs light to see his keyboard. Then there's his beach chair, beach shorts, lotion, towels, sandals and Sony Walkman TV so he can stay on top of the news.

Idiot Dues and Waiting Fees: Dan interacts with many idiots in the course of his business. He knows exactly what he makes per minute and keeps a running tab which he converts to hours at the end of the year and deducts. Dan also deducts Physician Waiting Fees - the value of the time he spends waiting in physician offices. This year his Idiot Dues and Waiting Fees came the equilvalent of 27 days.

Gifts for his Many Worthy Employees: He didn't deduct anything here.

Charitable Donations: Dan collects all the chachkas he gets through the year from all the events he attends; awards, hats, towels, tee-shirts, et. al. and at the end of the year it all gets donated to his favorite charity, the Baldwin Retirement Home. Why this charity you may ask? Well, there are many Baldwins. They have provided a lot of copy, both glorious and notorious for Dans Papers and he owes the Brothers Baldwin bigtime. Someday they'll be older and need a retirement home all their own because who the hell would want to bunk up with them anymore?

On Rosey O'Donnell, one of the Brothers Baldwin told a family story. When they were kids, one Baldwin was so enanamoured with Houdini that he dared his two brothers to wrap him in a carpet, put him in a tub, fill it with water and he would escape before he drowned. So two of the Brothers Baldwin wrapped the third in their mother's good carpet, put him in a tub and turned on the water. Then the two went to watch TV, leaving "The Great Baldwini" to escape or die. A little time went by and one of the two started to get a little anxious about the third one in the tub. Finally they went to check on him just as the water was about to cover the face of The Great Baldwini. They could have helped to unwrap him from a water logged carpet, they could have turned off the water and drained the tub, but noooooo.... why rob The Great Baldwini of his crowning achievement? They put a straw in his mouth so he could breathe through the rising water and left him in the tub!!! It's no wonder these boys conquered Hollywood, what could an agent do to them they haven't already done to each other?

I'd love to be at a Baldwin party as they hit the fifth drink mark, if they're a typical Irish family, that's when all the really good stories come out and just before the fighting starts. Think of the copy Dan could get from that! He could deduct the whole family! ●

Is there truth to the rumor that lawyer Johnny Cochran has bought a house on the water in Sag Harbor?

Everyone wants to know what Southampton's Denise Rich thinks about the pardon of her ex, Marc, who until recently was banished in Switzerland. There is only one place to tell her story and its with Barbara Walters, an interview that will be aired on 20/20 April 27.

Marty and Patty Raynes have parted with their house on Meadow Lane in Southampton for a reported $12 million. It's a 17 room oceanfront, Norman Jaffe designed, masterpiece sitting on four and a half acres, and at the present time the buyer is anonymous.

The legendary graciousness of Montauk's Gurney's Inn Monte family surfaces every once in a while with a story from the past. E! channel's True Hollywood Story chronicalized the tragic history of a 70's icon Joey Heatherton. In the latter part of her life as an entertainer she was bankrupt, in and out of trouble with the police and ill from drug use. Angelo Monte recalled in an interview on the show that she came to Gurney's and after an extended stay with them fled without paying a dime. Mr. Monte displayed compassion and honesty said, "We just let her go, we felt sorry for her." That's what the Monte's are all about.

Even the golden touch of Steven Spielberg can not be so golden. He and some buddies tried getting a new site online called Pop.com. They are trying again with a movie site Countingdown.com. We think this is the winner.

Who wouldn't want to see a cartoon film written and narrated by Steve Martin? It is hysterical. The title Gwyneth and Steve: Our Struggle to Have a Baby. We thought about the age difference but Steve notes in the film that he too worried "about Gwyneth's and my age difference of 748 years".

HAVE A BLAST!

I feel lucky to have been able to see Blast! on Broadway before the critics molded my opinion. By the time this gets to print, the reviews will be in but I can say that my hands were hurting from clapping so much. We attended a preview of this show, born in Indiana, with marching bands which has grown to be an extravaganza of extraordinary talent, invention, precision, and relentless energy. I found it hard to believe that these wholesome young men and women could do all these things: play instruments, sing, dance, twirl, and more. The audience included well wishers from around the country, hard to please New Yorkers, and several incognito critics and by performance's end all were cheering. And after 15 minutes of standing ovations, there was the entire cast waiting in the lobby to thank everyone for attending.

...Focus on the North Fork

Southold's Treasured Past

Here's something special to do on the North Fork this spring. Open through May 6, "Hidden Treasures" is an exhibition of seldom-seen historic items from Southold Historical Society's attics and cupboards. Housed at the Society's Winter Gallery, Prince Building, Main Road in Southold, it is a beautifully presented display of ten historical collections not usually available to the public or which are housed in Society buildings closed for the winter.

"Feathers and Fripperies"

Visitors will experience the fashion of the day through Uncle Frank Smith's late 19th century/early 20th century hat collection. Ladies flocked to his spring and fall sales from as far away as New York City and Brooklyn. As there were very few cars in those days, most customers came by train.

To be in fashion, one had to have a Frank Smith creation. If a hat was not quite what a lady wanted, a bow here or a feather there would generally do the trick. In fact, most of his hats were made to order.

A Victorian child's closet display holds toys and playthings that were often stuffed into the bottom of a closet much as many of do today. This exhibit shows how things might have been stored, using children's and infant's clothing from the mid-1800s to the mid-1900s. The closet's shelves also hold toys and books of that time.

On public view, for the first time since being donated to the Society in 1964, is a rare collection of shorebird and puddleduck decoys.

The "Doctor's Office" is a replica of one that might have existed at the turn of the 19th century. It includes instruments from the practices of Dr. Joseph Hartranft and Dr. Harry Stevens from 1879 to 1963.

"Nautical Treasures" is comprised of a small sampler of artifacts and documents from the museum's extensive collection at Horton's Point. Lighthouse artifacts are scarce and valuable at a time when national focus has been placed on the existence of lighthouses and the need to preserve them. All of the artifacts are footprints that

GOLFING

By Bob Ballot

One of the poshest destinations in Florida for snowbirds is Sarasota. For many tastes, this Gulf coast city about 50 miles southwest of Tampa defines the state's high culture. Several theater troupes have long thrived here. The internationally renowned Ringling museum, which is recognized equally for its Rubens holdings and collection of circus artifacts, is a famous attraction. And many international opera stars perform at the Sarasota Opera during the winter season. Perhaps it is the town's reputation for merging fine art and performance art which has attracted them.

Where do the jetsetters stay? A good many, including Brad Pitt and Gwyneth Paltrow, Robert DeNiro, Anne Bancroft and Mel Brooks, Gregory Peck and REM turn to the barrier-island enclave called The Resort at Longboat Key Club. Comprised entirely of one- and two-bedroom suites, many gazing over the Gulf of Mexico, Longboat Key Club provides luxurious lodging and is ideal for those intent on mixing a little golf with their culture and sun worshipping. The resort has gained international prominence as a tennis center, as well, boasting 38 Har-Tru courts, including six lighted for night play.

This week Longboat Key Club becomes the darling of the food and wine crowd. Regarded as a pre-eminent charity wine exhibition, the resort's Florida Winefest & Auction is now in its 11th year. Many of the top vintners and chefs in the U.S. pour and prepare their finest for the thousands of food and wine enthusiasts from around the world who attend. At one point, though, while everyone else is indulging and imbibing, the vintners get to sneak out for the traditional winemaker's golf tournament.

And they'll be playing a historic Florida course. The 1000-acre resort gradually built up through the years around Bill Mitchell's 18-hole Islandside layout, which opened in the early '60s. From the back tees, this parkland layout provides one of the sternest challenges in Florida. With forced carries, elevated greens, voracious bunkers and relentless lateral water, Islandside requires excellence in all facets of the game.

In 1982, another 27 holes were added several miles down the road from the resort's high-rise accommodations. By far, the most exhilirating of the three nine-hole layouts is the Blue Course. Meandering along Sarasota Bay, the Blue nine seduces you with its lovely water views and then shoots an arrow through your heart with fiendishly demanding shot values.

A large, serene lake lined by fully mature native mangroves and buttonwoods is a postcard of Florida tranquility. That is until it dawns on you that your tee shot from the fourth tee must first travel over this voluminous body of water and then clear the tops of the trees standing sentry astride the fairway on the other side! Welcome to the 411-yard par 4 fourth which seriously contends for the title "Mother of All Forced Carries." And if the view from the tee doesn't unnerve you, the target area on the other side of the lake surely will. The fairway quickly pulls away at a sharp angle from the tee box, leaving relatively little airspace for your drive to travel through. To further complicate matters the landing area is narrow enough to toss underhand softball strikes across.

There are two very scenic holes, however, which ask the Marquis de Sade to pipe down. The first glimpse of the harbor comes when you reach the green at the 170-yard par 3 seventh. The putting surface is poised on headlands jutting out into the bay. Better keep your drive straight or left of the hole. The land slopes to the right near the green, spiriting shots away in the swampy nether world.

The finishing hole is a magnificent par 5 of 545 yards. The fairway darts this way and that, with six bunkers and a pond tracking the hole all the way on the right and a beautiful boat basin lying beyond the five greenside bunkers on the left. It is one of the more open holes on the Blue nine, but requires strategic routing to get to the green unblemished.

The course has a linksy feel to it, with mounds and undulations bubbling to the surface on most fairways. On the 152-yard par 3 third hole, a sequence of mounds and circular bunkers create the illusion that the target is no more than gap wedge away. Should you fall victim to this visual trickery you will be woefully short and required to chip creatively.

The Elite 18

(Semi-Private and Public Course Golf holes)

From the wooded, pristine courses of the Pine Barrens to the magnificent links layouts of the Twin Forks, golfers on the East End are blessed with a stunning variety of courses to match wits against.

With 15 full length courses and a sprinkling of quality par three layouts, the East End has golfers saying Myrtle Who?

To celebrate the area's emergence as a golfers paradise, Dan's Papers introduces a contest to determine the Elite 18 holes of the East End.

Send in your choices for your favorite holes by filling in the ballot below.

(Comments explaining your choices are welcome)

The results will be published weekly, one hole at a time, beginning with our special golf issue, June 1st.

FIVE STAR

...Focus on the North Fork

Away

One hole which makes no pretensions of its length is the number one handicap 580-yard fifth. This monster par 5 makes a broad, sweeping right turn with a lake clinging tightly to its right edge for much of the way. The water recedes from the fairway as the hole bends, but at greenside sneaks up again, out of sight of approach shots. As with most of the holes here, the difference between par and triple bogey often comes down to course knowledge.

A little knowledge can go a long way toward an enchanting evening in the neighboring restaurant and shopping district known as St. Armand's Circle, as well. This is a traffic circle like nowhere else, with a carousel of chi-chi boutiques and spectacular restaurants vying for supremacy around its circumference. Painful to admit, but this is the type of place that could give the Hamptons an inferiority complex.

Anchoring an entire quadrant of the circle since 1959 is the sublime Spanish / Cuban restaurant Columbia. Catering to all moods, it offers white tablecloth dining inside as well as al fresco tables streetside. On a you-can't-go-wrong menu, pay particular heed to the 1905 salad (the year of the first Columbia eatery, in Tampa). On a crisp bed of lettuce you'll find a sumptuous array of julienned ham, Swiss cheese, tomatoes, olives, grated Romano and an otherworldly dressing composed of fresh garlic, oregano, wine vinegar and Spanish olive oil. Merluz Russian-style and black bean soup were similarly spectacular.

Past

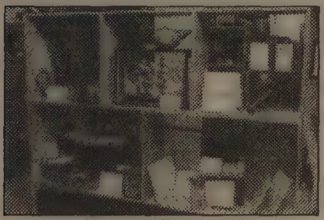
lead back through our maritime history.

The Late Victorain era was the time of patented gadgets and kitchen utensils such as the cherry pitter, cabbage chopper, bean slicer, egg beater and apple peeler. Many of these kitchen helpers were made of cast iron and decorated with incised lines or floral and foliage designs. Decorative tins of tea, coffee and spices were also popular kitchen items. And no kitchen was complete without an array of pottery mixing bowls, pitchers and yelloware: this last so called because of the clay from which it was made. This could easily be the description of kitchen items available from the upscale supplier Williams Sonoma. Some things just don't change a whole lot!



"Nautical Treasures"

Peggy Murphy, chairman of the Society's exhibition commitee, said, "Hidden Treasures is designed to encourage residents and visitors alike to learn more about Southold Town's history and introduce them to the work that the Society does to preserve the town's past."

"The Kitchen Cupboard"

The Southold Historical Society has two museum sites: a complex of historic buildings on Main Street and the Horton's Point Lighthouse overlooking the Sound.

Hidden Treasures is open Saturdays and Sundays from 1-4 p.m. and Thursdays from 6-9 p.m. Special openings for groups of ten or more can be arranged by appointment through the Society's office at (631) 765-5500.

The Sebring Convertible: A Car For All Seasons

The 2001 Sebring is an amazing automobile, with a streamlined slippery exterior, a luxurious interior and convertible top that makes this car the touring car of choice. With a 200 horse-power V-6 engine and four-wheel power disc brakes, this car has the get-up to go anywhere quick and the stopping power to get you there safely.

"This is a true production convertible," said Bob Shortle, sales manager of Buzz Chew Chrysler. "It was designed from the ground up to be an incredible convertible and still a year round vehicle. The roof is double insulated so the sound you hear with the top up is pure silence. It is a full season car."

The model I test drove was their LXI, one of the two versions sold in this busy Southampton dealership. I had all the power equipment at the tips of my fingers. The cream leather interior was soft, highly stylized and extremely roomy. The CD player holds four CDs, so a trip to the trunk to load up the music is unnecessary. With the dark blue top and chrome wheels, the car looked very hot on the outside and rode softly on the inside.

"It's a fun car to drive," said Bob, "and we sell them in bunches. Last month we sold three and with the warm weather coming, we expect to sell many more."

There are three levels of the Sebring Convertible, with the price beginning at $27,000. Loaded with all the options, the cost comes in under $30,000. The Sebrings are in stock, both in their convertible models and also the sedan, but to custom order one is no big deal. Production time at their Sterling Heights Michigan Plant is under six weeks.

The drive down Sunrise Highway in Southampton was lovely, with wind noise kept to a minimum by the aerodynamic slope of the windshield. The car handles with ease, responsive both with power and handling and oh, does it feel so good to drive.

For the winding back roads, away from the summertime traffic, the Sebring Convertible stands as one of the best ways to enjoy any East End season.

Shop 'til You Drop...With Maria Tennariello

Well, here it is heading toward Mother's Day, graduations, communions, confirmations, and all that spring and summer party stuff. I'm looking forward to the summer and all the spring shopping ahead.

Now is the time to settle down and enjoy the upcoming spring season. At Fraser's Botanica in Quogue, on Old Depot Road, there are beautiful cut flowers and floral arrangements, dried flowers, houseplants and orchids, gift baskets, unique vases, gifts and cards and even Godiva Chocolates. They can also help you decorate with flowers and unusual items for your special events, parties and galas. Holiday deocrating and catering are also available. Give them a call at 653-4145 or 1-800-736-6665.

No time for yard cleaning and maintainance? Neither do I, so I called Unlimited Earth Care in Sag Harbor for help. Unlimited Earth Care specializes in design layout and maintenance, installation, lawn care, planting, hedge trimming, tree and shrub translanting, pruning, floral gardens and shrubs, flower selection and planting and they use only 100% organic products. Whew! Call them at 725-7551.

What about pool designs? At J. Tortorella Pool & Spa Center they have over twenty spa models on display in their Hampton Bays showroom. Also look for Hatteras hammocks, teak furniture, Taboret wrought iron furniture and everything for the pool, beach and spa to have fun with. Located on West Montauk Highway in Hampton Bays, 728-8600.

Stubbs and Wootton will open its Southampton store the first week of May, which is right around the corner. Featured will be many new hip and fun styles as well as their signature grosgrain ribbon belts. They will also be introducing a line of heels, which incorporate a beautiful open toe sandal in faux crocodile and a closed toe mule in real lizard and printed silks. Check out their brand new website www.stubbsandwootton.com.

At Water Mill Custom Furniture there is quite a nice selection of handcrafted country style furniture such as tables, armoires, cupboards, computer desks, book cases, corner units and much more. All the pieces are signed and dated. Located on Willow Road (behind Corwiths Autobody) it is easy to get to.

Well, I'm off and running to check out some new stores that will be opening soon. Stay tuned.

Until next week. Ciao and Happy Shopping!

ART COMMENTARY

With Marion Wolberg Weiss

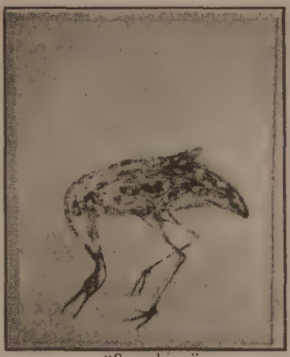
RIMA MARDOYAN- SMYTH AT NIGHTINGALE GALLERY

Last week's "Art Commentary" examined the relationship between language (grammar) and woven paper pieces by Seong Chun currently at Southampton College's Avram Gallery. Language continues to play a part in Rima Mardoyan-Smyth's show at Water Mill's Nightingale Gallery as well.

Inspired by Egyptian hieroglyphics, Ms. Mardoyan-Smyth's paintings often convey conventionalized images of the object named by the words. Thus, her two eggs represent the thing itself and is titled, "Eggs."

We would suggest, however, that the artist's works are often based on pictographs where an image or images when put together stand for concepts. Consider her piece depicting two circles in the center of the canvas called, "To See."

While the artist means two other works to be examples of hieroglyphics, we don't interpret them as such. One painting is titled "Searching," which captures the image of a contorted bird-like animal; we don't initially see how the object represents the word "searching." However, juxtaposed with a similar yet more graceful bird image nearby, the title makes sense: this latter, peaceful-looking bird is called "Serenity."



"Searching"

There are other times when we can clearly respond to the artist's use of hieroglyphics. And these are the times when Ms. Mardoyan-Smyth indulges her whimsical side in very special ways, particularly her employment of unconventional shapes to represent a word/concept.

Consider "The Right Thing," where the form resembles an upside down crown with an upright handle, or "United," where two unusual configurations are combined. We can imagine that these shapes are either spontaneously conceived or precisely concocted. It makes no difference; they're arresting and involving.

This is not to suggest that Ms. Mardoyan- Smyth disregards conventional shapes altogether. She juxtaposes her manufactured ones with more archetypical forms, like the circle and oval. These configurations become both the artist's starting and departure points, allowing her to use her considerable creative sensibilities.

The show will be on view until May 1.

HONORING THE ARTIST: MARY BOURKE

On the surface, Maine resident Mary Bourke didn't seem so very different from lots of other artists who raise a family, hold down a full-time job and also paint. As a result, Ms. Bourke managed to juggle many things at once: she was a full-time art teacher; took care of two children (now nineteen and twenty-one); and created landscapes evoking her real life rural/marine environment. Three years ago, however, Ms. Bourke realized that something had to give.

"I stopped teaching," she explains. "It was difficult to split my energies between teaching and painting. It was taking a lot out of me. Now all my energies are going into art. I can be more creative; my painting has evolved, my style and subject matter particularly."

Ms. Bourke continues, explaining how her subject matter has developed: "Now my focus is on childhood memories. I ran across some old photographs that showed my parents, grandparents and all of us, there are nine siblings. I combined images, photographs and memories; I also developed a new style and technique, learning about layering colors and glazes. The paintings themselves have more depth although my bright colors haven't changed."

While it's apparent that Ms. Bourke feels comfortable with experimentation and feels less restricted with her current work, she still treasures one thing that will never change: her affinity for nostalgia. We can see that when she talks about her pieces inspired by childhood memories, especially concerning her growing up on Long Island.

"We lived in the former John Phillip Sousa House on the North Shore on the water," she notes. "We could see the New York skyline from our home. We had a crazy household, people always around, surrounded by dishes, laundry. But we were all close, and we have remained close to each other. We felt very secure." (Ms. Bourke's brother, Charles Wildbank, is also an artist whose work has often appeared on Dan's covers.)

Ms. Bourke is also nostalgic about the water, moving to a coastal town in Maine after graduating from Boston College. For years, her art reflected the indigenous setting: the ocean, boats, the beautiful village of Camden. Her work was inspired by nearby farms as well, especially the domesticated animals which found their way into her paintings.

Now that Ms. Bourke is spending full-time at her art, she's busier than she's ever been." But what about the future? "I don't know what I'll be doing in five years," she says. "I don't think about it. I just keep going."

The Tailor Of Panama

CLOTHES MAKE THE MENSHE

What in the world (and where in the world) does the once well-dressed, 007-like British Secret Agent wear, following the defrosting of Russia's veddy chilly and sometimes chilling, Cold War, which has left novelist John Le Carre's spies out in the globally warmed, not-so-hot, cold? Well, in the most recent Spy-to-Movie style up-date he wears a soft, but snappy Panama hat and loose fitting Armani-gone-baggy-outfits... fitting (or ill-fitting) Pierce Brosnan's demotion from a Bond .007 to a .001 1/2 Le Carre, fizzled out, used to-be in Her Majesty's Service. The Panama hat goes with the territory assigned him... Panama... decidedly NOT a hot spot but, it's at least humid and, Brosnan is very human and sweats a lot while pounding away on a British Embassy operative (Catherine McCormack) after coolly hitting on her with a few of those old, double-intended sex lines. Fortunately, she's as tired of them as we moviegoers are, but, she likes to do a bit of pounding herself . . . they're quite shaggy together but, not as shaggy (the U.S. meaning) as the story. No matter! The Tailor of Panama is padded with enough sticky-wicked malevolence, of the sly and amusing kind.

IF THE SUIT FITS, BEAR IT

Honor will not be discerned at the explosive finale to the snarled-thread, re-tailoring of the 1996 novel written when the turning over of the Canal to the Post-Noriega Panamanians seemed dangerous. Now, the film, recrafted with so much devilish disillusionment by director, John Boorman, will have you guffawing with pleasure as every double-dealing character (and almost all are) go their own crooked way in the end . . . gleefully . . . like an out-of-control sewing machine, leaving a pattern of crazy bunched-up trails, without ends . . . like one of those pieced 1960s "peace" jackets hanging in a dusty thrift store.

If there is some honor to be found, it is in the "Tailor," portrayed by the incomparable Geoffrey Rush. He considers his profession, as he plies it, honorable and, that it is an honor to wear his suits . . . even though most of his clients are those oily, lying, cheating, harmful, rich and powerful pigs who will kiss the swarthy behind of any politico who can take control. So, when Brosnan arrives in Panama to dig out what lies there he goes, first thing, to Rush's Tailoring Shop, "formerly of Saville Road, London," because he knows that while the tailor is poking a tape measure up into the crotch, the crotchee will tell many things.

A GRIP ON THE TAILOR

Why will the tailor tell him? Certainly not for the Queen's sake. It's for the money . . . he faces bankruptcy and, the agent's done homework. Rush is not from Saville Road . . . he learned his job in prison and, even his adoring wife (a benign, unfortunately, Jamie Lee Curtis) and adored children don't know it. Brosnan (as Andy Osnard ... fallen agent) is not above using this as blackmail. Osnard is not above using anything (!) to make his arse more comfortable. He will also believe anything the tailor sells him. It's good to see a thicker, less slick Brosnan loosen up with slithery sleaze, while Ms. Curtis tightens up as a proper wife. Mr. Rush, however, acts up a perfectly stacked hammy, rye bread sandwich . . . triple-decking harried harassment and deliberate double-crossing, smeared with buttery feeling for the damages. Ham. maybe ill-used for Rush's character-with-character. Harry Pendel, is a cockney, Jewish, guilt-ridden, reinvention. His late Uncle Benny, from the East End rag trade, keeps appearing spontaneously to bother him with conscience, pungent morality and goading. For insider interest, Uncle Benny is playwright, Harold Pinter.

PANAMA CANAL OR BROOKLYN BRIDGE FOR SALE

In attempting to update the novel and tailor it to Mr. Brosnan (the book's M.I.-6 Agent Osnard is 29 and a lot less calloused) Le Carre's screenplay was reworked by Andrew Davies. As with so many translations, there are "whys". In this case, you may well ask why all the Jewish-this Jewish-that in the midst of sex, political injustice, greed, violence, parody, self-parody and maybe satire? Maybe, I should sit back and just enjoy a movie and not be such a noodge.

STAR RETREATS TO HER HAMPTONS HOME TO ESCAPE TERRORS OF CITY
WE KNOW THE FEELING!

Ms. Lauren Bacall, known to most as Betty, began her professional career as a fashion model and, also known by most, she quickly settled comfortably into the close ranks of legendary personalities. She has never left behind the fashion model appearance. You notice I did not use the term "LOOK" . . . once identified almost solely with her. Whether it's "Betty," "The Look" or "Baby," Screen Star or Broadway Star or Family person, she is always Bacall, the legend. From the time she lowered her eyes and her voice in To Have and Have Not at the age of 19, she was a STAR.

If I sound like a fan . . . I guess I've been too obvious. Like most of us show business-dizzy types out here on the watery East End, and knowing she was one of it's finest fixtures, I've always had the uncomfortable notion that I've been somewhat unconsciously stalking her and maybe it was one of the reasons I was here. Am I a fan? I had one actual meeting with her and her agent, at her Dakota apartment many years ago . . . she gave me a definite "no" to appear in a television film. Was I crushed? But, wasn't it a natural that she'd say yes to a film about a Star who is so adored by a Fan. . . it can be trouble.

The Fan, produced by music entrepreneur Robert Stigwood and directed by Edward Bianchi (still unknown to me) was made from the successful novel by Bob Randall. Ms. Bacall is Broadway star, Sally Ross. She has just completed the successful, long run of a play at the outset of the movie. The opening credits intercut her leaving the theatre and retiring to her apartment with close-up pan of a young man typing a fan letter to her. The camera scans an extremely tidy row of pens, pencils and other desk items including a sharp knife. His perfectly typed page reminds us of Truman Capote who would not accept his own typing of a page with an erasure. This handsome young man is Doug Breene keenly played by unknown then and now, Michael Biehn. The star actress, Ross, is now alone in her bed calling her ex-husband, Jake Berman. It's no wonder she misses him . . . he's played by James Garner. She leaves a shamelessly needy message on his machine.

THE BLOOD FLOWS LIKE CHAMPAGNE

She is not too enthralled with having to do a musical next, and, that along with her missing her ex-husband and the grueling work ahead of singing and dance numbers. . . she is very upset. Bearing the brunt of this and everything else involving Sally Ross' busy life is Belle Goldman, her secretary/assistant (and, as she shouts back during a 'bad time' . . . butler, nurse, FBI bodyguard, floor mop and wired telephone). Maureen Stapleton is the perfect receptacle for this role and the worst is to come. Belle will be the first to take one of Doug's psychotic attacks for not passing on his letters, as they have gotten lewder and wilder.

This is the kind of movie that should not be talked about too much since it is a suspense thriller . . . and the plot line is a matter of course. Following the slashing of poor Belle, more bodies go down than in a Shakespeare tragedy . . . I think I'll simply add that Hector Elizondo is a kindly N.Y. P.D. detective and the film's "Musical" music is writtten by Martin Hamlish with lyrics by Tim Rice. Not so simply . . . Bacall's performance in the closing scenes is spectacular.

Recently, I saw Bacall at a local function and she is still a Harper's Bazaar cover. See her in The Fan. Make reservations at 537-0500. There'll be refreshments and we'll talk about Betty, the movie and set decorating with one of the best in the business, Beth Kushnick.

silvia lehrer's cooking column

It's time to lighten up with the bright flavors of spring. Although many a food product is marketed as light; light olive oil – not much flavor, light beer – ditto, and light pastas – plenty of calories here, we're hardly becoming a nation of sylphs. As a matter of fact, I keep reading informative journals about Americans getting heavier. Yet no one really wants to eat "light" all of the time, the tendency to over-indulge is a perfectly natural one. What we want and what we aspire to is simply to "lighten up" – it's spring.

The cool, green colors of watercress, leek and zucchini combine to create a splendid soup. Rare and rosy coriander crusted tuna slices over arugula greens are topped with caramelized onions for a light entree. When onions are caramelized their natural sugars surface with a unique sweetness. Early rhubarb should be rearing their rosy stalks to give tang and flavor to a variety of dishes, such as rhubarb compote with gingerroot and balsamic vinegar.

Showers may continue to fall, yet April hints of rich green days to come. And this is cause for celebration.

CREAM OF LEEK, ZUCCHINI AND WATERCRESS SOUP

Cool green flavors give this classic French soup the light taste of spring.

Serves 6-8

3 leeks, white and light green part
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 tablespoon unsalted butter
1 1/2 pounds zucchini, peeled and diced
5 cups chicken stock, preferably homemade
Coarse (kosher) salt and freshly ground pepper
1 bunch watercress, heavy stems removed, and rinsed
1/3 cup heavy cream, optional
Sprigs of watercress for garnish

1. Remove any bruised outer layers and the dark green tops of the leeks and discard. Cut the leek in half lengthwise and rinse under cool running water. Soak in fresh water for 15 minutes or so to rid excess dirt and sand. Pat dry with paper towel and slice thin.

2. Heat olive oil and butter in a large saucepan, and when the butter melts, add the leek. Saute the leeks over medium-low heat, stirring for 3-4 minutes. Add zucchini and saute for about 3 minutes longer, do not brown. Pour in the stock and season with salt and pepper. Note: if using low-sodium canned broth taste for salt before adding. Simmer for 20 minutes until vegetables are tender.

3. Bring the soup back up to the boil and put in the watercress. Simmer for 2-3 minutes. You may serve the soup with the pieces of vegetables intact or puree in a blender or food processor. Can be prepared ahead to this point.

4. Before serving reheat soup, adding the cream over low heat, if desired. Garnish with springs of watercress and serve hot.

SEARED CORIANDER CRUSTED TUNA WITH ONION CONFIT

It takes just minutes to sear tuna until pink and rare. The slow cooked onions when caramelized as below are considered a confit. The confit can be completely cooked ahead and served at room temperature.

Serves 4

For the onions
4-5 medium onions, peeled and sliced paper thin
3 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
Coarse (kosher) salt and freshly ground pepper
2 teaspoons fresh thyme leaves

For the tuna
1 1/2-2 pounds sushi-quality tuna
Juice of 1 lime
2 tablespoons crushed coriander seeds
1 tablespoon extra-virgin olive oil
Coarse (kosher) salt and freshly ground pepper
Bunch arugula leaves, washed and spin-dried for presentation

1. Slice the onions thin with a sharp chef's knife or slice with the thin blade in place in a food processor. Heat oil in a large skillet and put in the onions. Cook, stirring the onions to coat in the oil, then season with salt and pepper. Add thyme leaves and stir into the onions. Adjust heat to a simmer, cover pan for 10 minutes or so lifting the cover to stir every once in a while. When onions are soft, uncover and allow onions to simmer over low heat for about 30 minutes or so, stirring occasionally, until tender and golden. Onions can be prepared up to one or two days ahead and refrigerated covered. Bring to room temperature before serving.

2. Cut the tuna into 4 even-sized slabs. Mix lime juice in a bowl with crushed coriander seeds, olive oil and salt and pepper to taste. Turn the tuna slices in the mixture to coat. Marinate for 10 minutes before cooking. I like to sear the tuna in a hot, nonstick skillet with a film of olive oil. Heat the skillet dry, drizzle in a little oil to coat the bottom of the pan.

3. Meanwhile sprinkle arugula leaves with a little coarse salt and olive oil, if desired, and toss to coat. Divide on four plates and set aside.

4. Put the tuna slabs in the hot pan and sear for 1 1/2 minutes on each side for a total of 6 minutes, turning with tongs and basting with the marinade. Transfer to a cutting board and cut each piece into 3-4 slices. Divide equally and overlap slices on top of the arugula. Toss a clump of room temperature onion confit over the tuna and serve.

BALSAMIC RHUBARB COMPOTE

This light compote makes a fine accompaniment to a fish or meat entrée.

Yield: about 2 cups

4-5 rhubarb stalks
1/4 cup balsamic vinegar
2/3 cup sugar
3/4 teaspoon grated peeled fresh gingerroot

1. Trim and discard leaves at top of rhubarb. If rhubarb is garden fresh the stalks do not need to be peeled, otherwise trim ends and peel the stalks. Cut into 1/4 inch crosswise slices and reserve.

2. In a saucepan reduce vinegar to 2 tablespoons; add gingerroot and sugar, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Stir in the rhubarb and simmer until rhubarb is tender and falling apart, about 10-12 minutes. Serve warm or at room temperature.

CORRECTION:

Last week two errors occured in the recipes. Inadvertently the ricotta cheese for the pizza rustica and the crisco for the rice pie were omitted. 1 1/2 pounds ricotta should appear at the end of the filling ingredients for the pizza and 2 teaspoons crisco should be added to the filling ingredients for the rice pie.

NEW: ALMOND BAR & RESTAURANT

There is a new eatery at the site of the former Woodshed in Bridgehampton – Almond Bar & Restaurant. Co-owned by Eric Lemonides and Chef Jason Weiner, Almond's concept is a contemporary French bistro with traditional fare. Appetizers (sardine terrine, rilettes of salmon and duck confit, salade Nicoise) are in the price range of $7 - $14. Classic bistro entrees such as steak frites, escargot, snapper Provencal and roast chicken are in the $15 – 19 range. Almond also offers sandwiches such as the croque monsieur ($9); and a fish po' boy ($11) as well as a burger ($10). They will also offer a raw bar. Currently Almond is open Thursday through Sunday from 6 p.m. to midnight and the bar opens at 5:30 p.m. After Memorial Day, Almond will serve dinner daily from 6 p.m. until midnight with the bar opening at 5:30 p.m.

NEWS FROM BABETTE'S

Babette's in East Hampton has added some flavorful new selections to their menu. A new dinner item is pan-seared local sea scallops over fresh housemade spinach pasta, tossed with grilled shiitake mushrooms and plum tomatoes dressed with carrot beurre blanc and asparagus fan. In other news, Barbara Layton of Babette's is heading up a project with the STAR Foundation (Standing for Truth About Radiation) that takes a stand against irradiated foods. Letters were mailed last week to all local restauranteurs asking them to take a pledge to avoid purchasing, selling or serving irradiated food in their restaurant and to support the passage of legislation banning the distribution and sale of irradiated foods. For more information call Barbara Layton at Babette's: (631) 329-5377.

MOTHER'S DAY GOODIES FROM COREY CREEK

Corey Creek Vineyards in Southold is offering a special package of goodies for Mother's Day. The $45 package includes one bottle of 1998 Corey Creek Rose, gourmet chocolate covered nuts from Fifth Avenue Chocolatier and an authentic Corey Creek T-Shirt. For further information on purchasing or shipping call Corey Creek Vineyards at (631) 765-4168 or check out their web site at www.coreycreek.com.

NEW: CAFÉ AT CRAZY DOG

The Crazy Dog in Westhampton Beach has announced some major changes for the 2001 season. The restaurant has expanded into a 2,500 square foot space on the left side of the current building, which will house their new dining room and will seat 63. The newly remodeled dining room will accept reservations, and Chef Eric Rifkin has created a completely revamped dinner menu. The right side of the current building will now house The Café at Crazy Dog, which will serve from 9 a.m. to midnight. The Café will serve a casual menu for breakfast, lunch and dinner, plus a separate children's menu.

SPRING HOURS AT TSUNAMI

Tsunami in East Hampton has announced their spring hours. The restaurant will be open Thursday, Friday and Sunday from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. and Saturday from 6 p.m. to 11 p.m. They will also serve a late night bar menu on Fridays and Saturdays.

TASTE OF THE NATION COMMITTEE NAMED

Committee members were named recently for the sixth annual Share Our Strength's Taste of the Nation East End to be held this year at the James Lane Café in East Hampton. The date is Sunday, May 20th from 5 to 9 p.m. This year's overall chairperson is Paula Schiff, owner of Paula Schiff Events. Other committee members include co-chair Nick Kraus, operations chair John Kowalenko of Art of Eating, ticket sales chairperson Nan Noell, corporate sponsorship chair Shamin Abas of NV/Tsunami, restaurant coordinator Nancy Singer of Turtle Crossing, and public relations/advertising chair Steve Haweeli of Wordhampton Public Relations. EAST END FARMING WITH JOE GERGELA

As I mentioned in last week's column, we have been really busy at Long Island Farm Bureau, so busy in fact, I had to put off filling Toni's position until Spring. I am very pleased to announce that Carolyn McAllister of Manorville has been hired as Director of Public Relations for LIFB. Carolyn is a native Long Islander with a degree in journalism from the University of South Carolina. Her position will be to serve as a conduit for communications between the agricultural industry and the community at large. Carolyn's experience and personality will make her a great advocate for our farmers and the Farm Bureau. Carolyn is another welcome addition to our fine staff.

In the meantime, my associate Becky Wiseman and I have been in the trenches, particularly on land use issues. I have written many times over the last several years about the issue of open space retention and private property rights. After a difficult year of negotiating with Southampton Town officials, they are going to public hearing on April 24th on a 10 item code amendment proposal on limiting development and potential buildout on farmland. Councilman Skip Heany has taken the lead on introducing the proposed zoning code amendments. While the farming community would like to be left alone, as they have already been subjected to an upzone years ago, they are cautiously optimistic that what is being proposed is fairly reasonable. The town's leadership has been under severe pressure from the environmental community that more needs to be done to curtail devel-

About Face: Heads Up

I am asked, especially at this time of year for some reason, questions about hair coloring at home. Spring must be the time women (and maybe some guys, too) decide that a change is in order. With summer's approach, a shade or two lighter seems to be all that is needed. Perhaps a random highlight or so. I find that when hair is dyed at home, and a change is attempted, it always results in a trip to the local salon for some Rx. Maybe some tips can head off this excursion. If you have been using a dark shade and want to lighten it a bit, don't go and apply a lighter shade to your present color. The result will be lighter roots and darker ends. And if you comb it through in the hopes of attaining all one color, forget it. You will only be applying dye over existing color, making it darker and harder to remove. When you go to a salon for a touch up, they apply a 20 volume peroxide on your roots, and to refresh your ends, they use the same root color but mixed with a more gentle 10 volume peroxide.

The problem is, if you buy a boxed color, you are getting 20 volume peroxide, so combing through will result in a shade different from the roots. I usually suggest to someone with a problem of wanting to go lighter without a trip to the salon, to use a highly detergent shampoo like PRELL. Several shampoos at once or over a period of days will lighten the hair, especially the ends. Then a color can be chosen to your satisfaction. If it is several shades that you want to lighten, I can't stress to you enough to leave it in the hands of a professional. Many times a home color can leave the hair with unwanted shades of reds and golds when one attempts to correct this themselves.

A hairdresser can see this coming from working with different combinations of tints over time and attempt to correct it either by suggesting a different shade and color or by the use of drabbers. Drabbers are a product added to the mixed color to eliminate signs of brassiness and other funky colors. Sometimes only a drop is added to attain the sought after color, other times more. These products can wreak havoc in the hands of an unskilled person. So leaving the correction work up to the hairdresser makes good sense to me. They have, at their disposal, all that is needed to correct mistakes. Don't try to take major color changes on your own. Be careful to follow all instructions on the package inserts.

Yes, doing the patch test is important. Just because you haven't shown an allergic reaction in the past doesn't mean it can't happen. By getting advice before attempting to change the color on your own, you will be saving yourself a lot of money, time and most important, your hair will be saved. All the processes needed to correct that one little 'idea' will certainly change the structure of your hair. Remember, on the average, hair only grows a half inch per month, if you have to cut your hair because of damaging chemical treatments, that is all you can expect, that little half inch a month. Go easy on yourself, you deserve it!

Farming

opment and protect more open space. We don't disagree; however, about who is going to pay for it. That is where we have a problem. It is easy to talk about what should be done with someone else's property when you have nothing at stake. The preservation and protection of our farmlands and environmentally sensitive resources are a laudable public policy goal. If it is for the public good, then the public should contribute toward that end. We hope that the proposed zoning code amendments do just that; balance the public good by ensuring fairness and that it doesn't totally come out of the farmers pocket only. The jury is still out on this one. I will say one thing, Skip Heany is very sensitive to the farmers' equity issue and has worked with the farm community throughout the process. The entire negotiation process has allowed the farmers, the environmental community, farm advocate organizations (Peconic Land Trust and LI Farm Bureau), the Southampton Town Planning Board, Town Council, Town Attorney to come to an end product. We may not be totally happy but I'm sure other interests groups are not totally happy, either. I guess that is what makes a compromise.

The reason I want to mention this process in Southampton is because we at Farm Bureau are dealing with the same issue (zoning code amendment) in Southold Town on the North Fork. However, the Supervisor and Town Council are taking a different approach. They announced at a press conference they plan to upzone farmland to 5 acre large lot zoning. The town has not allowed the farm community to come to the table to work through this issue in a democratic process. They are doing it in a vacuum. This is causing the farmers and farm landowners to be left in the lurch as to what this means to their property rights. In over a dozen years here at LIFB, I've never seen such a highly arrogant attitude by a town government. Whatever happened to democracy, government by the people, and for the people? Sounds like tyranny to me. I hope they remember that the citizens will hold them accountable in November. The farmers won't wait that long, as they are getting organized and will do what they have to do legally and with the media. Stay tuned.

POLICE BLOTTER

A rather epic police report dominates our blotter this week. A DWI arrest by the East Hampton Town Police led to an X-rated exchange and a struggle. None of the four, apparently inebriated passengers of a 1999 Toyota admitted to driving the vehicle the police had stopped. They were also acting aggressive and backup was called in. The four men could or would not produce the keys so that the police could not move their car off the road.

Then, according to the police report, one of the men, Adam Crandall, became profanely abusive, freely using the "f," "a" and "s" words, which, fortunately or unfortunately, we cannot reprint in this paper. Remarks such as "I'll drop you, without that badge you ain't worth – " were hurled at the officers. "Crandall was told to "cool out," reads the police report.

But then one of the other men, Alvaro Montenegro, as officers continued to attempt the locate the keys to the car, began to berate the police in a similar manner; and Crandall repeated such statements as "I'm going to kick your – " An officer drew his baton but Crandall would not "cool down" and was struck on the thigh.

Thus began a series of struggles with Crandall and Montenegro; the latter allegedly grabbed one of the officers' firearm and was struck in the face. But the men continued to fight the police. At one point Montenegro was kicked in the stomach and was apparently rendered unconscious. By this time an officer of the East Hampton Village Police had arrived. An ambulance was requested to take Montenegro, who was now conscious, to the hospital, along with one police officer. Eventually Montenegro and Crandall wound up at headquarters.

Also in East Hampton, an unknown person placed a dead animal head on the front deck of a house on Florence Street. (The police report does not state what type of animal was used.) The resident has his suspicions as to who placed the head there, but did not wish to pursue the matter, only to have it on record.

On Hedges Bank Road in East Hampton, a resident reported that one day three evergreen spruce trees were removed from the front of her yard.

Not the smartest of crimes: someone tried forced entry into the East Hampton Town Police annex in Montauk. Other than a damaged screen there was no other damage reported.

East Hampton Village Police, at the request of the dean of students, had a talk with two students of the Middle School. One of the students had reported the other had threatened to shoot the dean. After this discussion, police came to the conclusion that the student in question had not made the threat.

Dan's LETTERS

DAN CAN EVEN MAKE SHORTHAND FUN

Dear Dan,

I am interested in obtaining permission to use articles from your paper for an educational project I am working on.

I work as an educational consultant and author in the field of machine shorthand (court reporting, closed captioning, transcription work, and interpreting for the deaf). Our industry is experiencing a dramatic need for more people with machine shorthand skills. A company that I consult for, Stenograph, has launched an ambitious program to create materials and tools for schools nationwide to teach machine shorthand via the Internet. The largest part of the training program involves creating dictation that is marked syllabically, then read at timed speeds, from 40 words per minute up to 240 words per minute. I would be very interested in using material from Dan's Papers for some of the literary material that we need to dictate. You have a wide variety of topics with diverse vocabulary, and the humor often present in the articles helps keep what could be a boring dictation class interesting.

The audio dictation is accessible to students who are enrolled in classes at schools teaching with Stenograph University Online tools, and a hard copy of the material, with syllabic markings, would be available to instructors for grading purposes. We would be happy to include on the audio and text mention of where each article came from, and give your website address.

If you would like more information about this project, go to the website for Stenograph University at www.stenographu.com.

Thank you for considering this request!

"So that the Earth may be healed"

Farms, Horse Pastures, Golf Courses, Residential, Commercial, Schools, Churches, Large Acreage or Small, Turf, Trees, Scrubs, Wherever Plants Grow In Soil!!!

Give your landscape a treat. Ten years of research and development is now available for your property and farm. You now have an option for beautiful landscapes and farms without the use of soil destroying fertilizers and toxic chemicals. Organics by neglect is no longer necessary. These Organic products produce the healthiest soil for the healthiest plants that will repel pests and dis-ease. My organic methods are the best for your soils. Call for a consultation today.

If you've toyed with the idea of LEAVING the world of retail, restaurant, hospitality, or brokerage management to pursue a high powered CORPORATE ENVIRONMENT, we may have an incredible solution.

Our industry utilizes almost every trait you've developed as a high performance manger. Only now, you become a part of corporate rather than serving corporate. You'll need:

 Strong people-reading skills
 Ability to communicate with executives
 High energy levels
 Negotiation skills

We are the second fastest growing industry in North America. Our industry is in massive demand. Our management team has an unmatched commitment to training.

Visualize: A law firm image
A "Silicon Valley" culture
A second year 80K upside

Don't send us a resume, yet. We're not as interested in what you have done as we are in what you want to do. Send a one page hand written letter telling us 3 things:

1. What you believe you are capable of.
2. The strongest natural talent you have.
3. How we can reach you.

EAST HAMPTON

It's Hard to Design Something So Simple. Take this elegant new home, for example. It harkens back to early East End design features such as mixing shingles with vertical board and batten and the gorgeous band of smaller windows on the front elevation. Plus such amenities as 5 bedrooms, heated gunite pool, two car garage, eat-in kitchen with granite tops and commercial stove, Marvin windows, central a/c, and professional landscaping to come. $995,000.
